

EQUINE / CANINE

"The horse problems I would commonly treat with the unit are; traumatic, hips, arthritis, muscle spasm and injuries, tendonitis, precosities and knee problems. I can get results after 3/5 treatments but a bigger problem could be up to 10 treatments. I have never experienced any problems with applying the therapy to horses and they are very relaxed throughout. Other therapies I use include stretching and traction of articulations. I finds the 'swellings' treatments on the unit and the 'traumatic pain' treatment to be of great benefit when treating, also having good effect with the 30 minute 'muscle ache' programme"

Bodo Wisst, Physiotherapist, Germany

"MLD can be used in conjunction with DEEP OSCILLATION® therapy to assist with the breakdown of protein fibrosis and stimulate healing. This German designed equipment is portable and can be used safely on horses. Deep Oscillation creates an electrostatic field that increases anti-inflammatory and oedema reducing effects. MLD and Deep Oscillation can be used immediately after injury and on the first postoperative day, as it is very gentle."

Rebecka Blenntoft, Vodder MLD, Human and Equine MLD Therapist, UK

"I initially bought the Physiopod because my mare sustained a suspensory ligament injury. She had been scanned and the left hind suspensory had a split half way down, she was very lame. As soon as the Pod arrived I started treating her twice a day on the Sports programme for ruptured ligaments. Even after the first treatment I noticed that the leg had gone down and the soft tissue swellings above the fetlock were reduced. Ten days later she was sound. I couldn't believe it!"

Gloria Leverett MAO Pg.Dip Back2Back Limited, UK

"Thomas - my Rottweiler, then aged 10 and very arthritic, would respond very well to D.O.T on his aching joints, in particular on his elbows. He would be unable to get up from a prone position but after 20 minutes of DOT on the Arthritis setting he would be able to move with much greater ease"

Judy Spooner Canine therapist

"What can I say, the machine is amazing - the horse I treated on Sunday can bend right round to touch his quarters equally both sides! On Saturday he couldn't even move his head let alone bend his neck....! Great result. The Irish Show jumping horse with the jarred shoulder had a fantastic lesson today & jumped out of his skin, the best in a long time"

Gilliyen H Carter ESMT Dip FT/ST Dip, NMM, DOT Equine Neuromuscular Specialist & Proprietor of Equi-Therapy UK